

Did Your Work in the Automotive Industry Expose You to Asbestos?

If you were an auto mechanic or worked in the automotive industry before 1980, you may be at risk of developing mesothelioma, a deadly cancer. Why? Because manufacturers regularly used asbestos in vehicle parts during this time, and asbestos exposure is the only known cause of mesothelioma.

- Asbestos was widely used in the automotive industry before 1980. It could be found in brake pads, clutch facings, gaskets, transmission parts, and other similar materials.
- Even if your job did not put you in direct contact with these parts, there is still a chance you could have been exposed to asbestos. When disturbed, asbestos dust is released into the air making anyone nearby vulnerable to inhaling the dangerous fibers, which can cause mesothelioma.
- Unfortunately, it was not uncommon for auto industry workers to bring asbestos dust home on their clothes and shoes or in their hair – unknowingly putting their family at risk of secondhand exposure to asbestos.

MESOTHELIOMA COMPENSATION

If you or a loved one worked in any of these occupations, you may be at risk of developing mesothelioma or another asbestos-related disease. Make sure your doctor is aware of your work and military history, as this could play an integral part in confirming a mesothelioma diagnosis and any compensation you may be entitled to.

Companies knew about the dangers of asbestos but continued to manufacture and sell asbestos-containing products. In short, they put profits ahead of people. For many manufacturers no longer in business, special court-ordered trusts — estimated at over $30 Billion — have been set up to provide compensation for mesothelioma victims and their families.

Sokolove Law is a trusted mesothelioma law firm, and a leading provider of legal services that help victims of asbestos exposure file asbestos claims. For more than 30 years, Sokolove Law has helped bring justice and compensation to thousands of mesothelioma victims — and their families.
